It is a well-known fact that education has paramount importance in our lives. Books play a vital role to impart education to our children. At every level of a child's development, it is our duty to be careful and very selective about the quality of books that we prescribe. Keeping this fact in mind we are trying to give the best that a child deserves.

In the current scenario of general decline in moral and ethical values, which leads to unhealthy competition in business, it becomes very difficult for the people of principles to work honestly. Even in such adverse circumstances, we neither deter nor deviate from our one point aim of giving 'the right kind of educational books at a reasonable price'.

Insight into Social Science is a graded series of books on Social Studies for class I to class VIII. 'Social Studies' is a term used to describe the broad study of the various fields which involve past and current human behaviour and interactions. With advancements in the fields of transport and communication, the world is increasingly becoming smaller. We are more aware and connect easily with the events of the world. Today, the world is observed as a whole and not just as an individual society or a nation. Our series introduces the students to the global world in a gradual manner. Special emphasis has been laid on creating awareness about the society and environment among the students.

The purpose of teaching social science is to help the students to learn their role in the society and how their actions can impact the world in a positive way. This is done by providing them the basic knowledge of history; understanding of cultures around the world; participating in civics and society; and critical thinking skills.

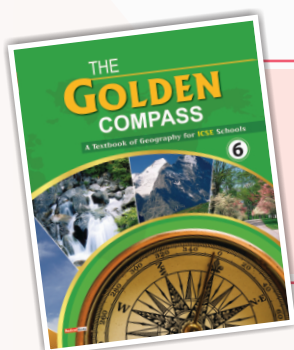

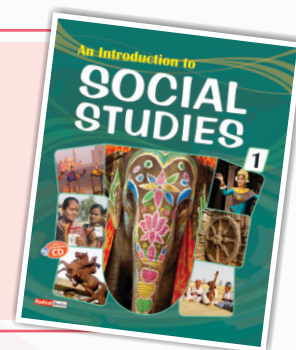

Our series 'Insight into Social Science' has been created keeping this objective in mind. Beginning from their immediate environment, including home, family, neighbourhood, and gradually moving on to their own country and the world, the students get a feel of all the things around them.

ART AND CRAFT

Every child has a plethora of ideas and each of them has a natural urge to express those ideas in various forms. The art and craft is certainly one of the most exquisite and satisfying means to do so. Many times it has been seen that the latent potential of a budding artist remains unexplored due to lack of proper and systematic guidance. Be Creative, a series of eight books for children from grade KG to V, has been designed keeping all these in mind.

Be Creative has certain unique features which make it one of its kind. The first and the foremost is that each book of the series contains activities based on four major areas of fine art for children i.e. colouring, drawing, pencil shading and craft work. The activities are graded according to the age group of the children and most of them are accompanied by their working steps explained in simple language with real photographs. This certainly makes this series user-friendly and self-explanatory. Moreover, it has been seen that usually children find it extremely difficult to arrange the requisite material for various craft activities. It is either unavailable or quite expensive. To solve this problem, the series is being provided with maximum material. The basic idea behind it is that the child should not lose enthusiasm for the lack of material.

This series of books will develop students' soft skill of artistry, which will form a precise medium of expressing their delicate visions.

The art activities in this book are designed for exploration and enjoyment by young artists at home, at school, or anywhere where children have the materials and opportunities to be creative. The art activities are devised to encourage children to express their creativity by creating something new and different from samples made by adults, or copied mock-ups.

All the art activities in Arts and Crafts value and stress the 'process of art', and encourage children to think for themselves how to use materials to make the art of their own. Exploration, discovery and experimentation are the key to each child's creative progress. The most important result of art is not what is produced but what the child experiences and learns along the way. The visual results of art will be unique to each child and will delight and inspire both children and adults.

This is a kind of book that you need to work through page by page. The real fun is to get immersed in it and do whatever appeals the most to you. You will find a wealth of ideas to help you.

Here, at last, in the form of Arts and Crafts is a treasure chest of sparkling ideas, packed with practical suggestions and clear instructions. It is obvious that the author has included only those ideas that have been repeatedly tried and tested, avoiding the kinds of complicated projects that so often lead to disappointment.

Have fun!
